

It's been a while and a lot has happened, so I'll be brief.

In 2002, Sandy and I divorced. I moved out of Grace Manor and into my own house, located in the historic Fort Grounds part of the city of Coeur d'Alene. I'm right next door to North Idaho College and about three blocks from the beach.

The new house is great. It sits on a big lot and there is an office, full-sized garage for my shop, plus my basement "media room." The media room is new; the water heater failed and flooded the basement in September, but it was nice warm water so I didn't get bitchy about it.

I've had some great times with the boys this past year. We've enjoyed going to the beach, amusement parks, various restaurants, and (this being North Idaho) the shooting range. We also flew to San Diego to visit Nonnie and go to Disneyland and the CaliforniaAdventure.

Lunch at Dad's House: Simon, Jonah, and Jeremiah

Jordan is 16 and has moved out of the house and into his own crib. Being a teenage boy, he doesn't phone and when he does come to visit he offers up no information on his current status so I can only assume that he's happy to be out on his own. He would like to save up money to tour Europe next year and take lots of photos.

The rest of the boys are currently living with their mother, yet I still get to corrupt them on the weekends!

Jeremiah is 8 and is in the third grade. Jerry enjoys school and does well in everything, being very competitive with his older brothers. He has a wonderful sense of humor and enjoys always being in charge.

Simon is 10 and is in the fifth grade. He's a big guy, currently 5'4" and weighing something like 150 lbs. Simon's interests are television, watching television, and seeing what's next on television. He wants to be a chef when he grows up.

Disneyland, Splash Mountain

Jonah is 9 and is in the fourth grade. Jonah is very sensitive and does not like to be embarrassed so I can't divulge much here without risking his wrath. He's doing very well in school, enjoys drawing and thinks deep thoughts.
